

UPHOLDS CALIFORNIA IN WARLIKE TIRADE

CONGRESSMAN SISSON OF MISSISSIPPI WANTS WAR RATHER THAN SUBMISSION TO INDIGNITY.

AN ATTACK ON ALIENS

Speaker Declares He Stands With State in Efforts to Prevent Improv-erishing of Country by Aliens.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, April 28.—A war speech in support of the proposed California alien law was delivered in the house today by Representative Sisson of Mississippi.

"If we must have war or submit to this indignity I am for war," cried Mr. Sisson. "I am with the people of California in their efforts to prevent these aliens from acquiring land and impoverishing the country for a hundred generations."

Makes Dramatic Appeal. "I believe," said Mr. Sisson, "that no non-resident alien should be allowed to hold a single foot of land in the territory of the United States. What would Washington say, in answer to the question 'war or submission?' What would Jackson say? What would Cleveland say? What would McKinley say? I resent the efforts of Japan to force us to submit to her demands."

Mr. Sisson took the position that the Japanese government in protesting against alien land legislation was endeavoring to exempt its citizens from the operation of the laws of the state.

Government's Position. "The president and secretary of state," said Mr. Sisson, "should only assure an alien government that the people of the alien nation would be dealt with fairly in accordance with the law of the state. Any other position would lead to the federal government taking out from under the laws of the state the citizens of another nation, but all citizens or aliens residing in a state must be held subject to its laws and to exempt the aliens would give him privileges over and above those accorded to American citizens."

Mann Makes Contentious. Representative Mann, the republican leader, suggested the United States had the constitutional right to treat with foreign powers to secure for American citizens property rights abroad and that Mr. Sisson was contending that the foreign governments did not have a similar right.

Mr. Sisson contended the people of California had the right to pass laws regarding alien holding of land as in judgment seemed best when such laws did not infringe upon the federal constitution.

Law Points Discussed. Sisson discussed at length points of international law involved in the dispute and declared that California was endeavoring to do only what Japan had already done.

"If Japan now threatens us with war what would she do when millions of her citizens have acquired land in our country," he said. "I lay down the proposition that an alien population holding land within our borders would be a fixed and constant menace."

"We must preserve to the American farmer the right to own the soil of our country without competition which would drag down his standard of living. I would not surrender it unless we had spent the last drop of blood in American manhood."

Wilson is Sanguine.

President Wilson has high hopes for the success of the Bryan peace plans. He feels that proposals which may at first seem impossible of agreement between nations can be accomplished because he believes the temper of the world opinion is in favor of the promotion of peace. While referring to the peace plan of Secretary Bryan the president felt it to be known that he had already received favorable comment on the project from members of the diplomatic corps and that the suggestion had been kindly received everywhere. It was said at the Japanese embassy today that there had been no change in the status of negotiations regarding the California alien land bill since Secretary Bryan's departure for Sacramento. The Japanese government is awaiting the outcome of the secretary's mission.

Meanwhile it is felt that anything in the nature of interference through the diplomatic protest or any attempt to inject itself into the conferences about to begin in California between Secretary Bryan and the state legislature would only tend to embarrass the situation.

Bryan at Sacramento. Sacramento, Calif., April 28.—William Jennings Bryan, secretary of state, arrived in Sacramento early today to confer with Governor Johnson and the California legislature on the proposed alien land holding laws. Governor Johnson met the visitor at the train where also a considerable group of democratic legislators had gathered and personally welcomed Mr. Bryan to California.

MONTENEGRO WILL FORMALLY PROTEST DEMAND OF POWERS

Representative at London Receives Orders to Ask a More Equitable Adjustment to Affairs.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, April 28.—The representative of the Montenegrin government in London received instructions today from Cetinje ordering him to protest formally against the demand by the European powers for the immediate evacuation of Scutari by the Montenegrins which is described by the government of King Nicholas as unjust and cruel.

The demand of the European powers is given in the following terms: Orders Evacuation.

"We have the honor to declare collectively to the royal government of Montenegro that the taking of the fortress of Scutari does not in any way modify the decision of the European powers relative to the delimitation of the frontier of northern and northeastern Albania and consequently the city of Scutari must be evacuated with the briefest possible delay and must be handed over to the European powers represented by the commanders of the international naval forces lying before the Montenegrin coast. The royal government of Montenegro is invited to give a prompt reply to this communication."

To Make Formal Protest. The Montenegrin representative in London to whom this demand was cable back said today: "I have been ordered by my government to protest formally against the unjust and cruel demands and once more to ask the European powers to examine in an equitable manner the vital question of Montenegro's future and to place that nation on an equal footing with the other Balkan allies."

Troops Leave City. Vienna, April 28.—Crown Prince Danilo of Montenegro and his troops have marched out of Scutari toward the north according to official dispatches received here today. Only five batteries of Montenegrin artillery remain in the city.

TO PRACTICE DELAY IN CHINESE MATTER

Political Developments in China Make Advisable Delay in Matter of Recognition.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, April 28.—Political developments in China have made it probable that the United States will recognize immediately the new republic as originally intended and officials here believe there is, therefore, no danger of further complicating the delicate situation at Peking as a result of the conclusion of the five power loan and the friction between Yuan Shi Kai and his cabinet on the one side and the powerful radical party in the assembly on the other.

Notwithstanding the advantage that might be gained by an immediate recognition it is believed here that the five powers party to the new loan will refrain from extending their recognition for the present even though it was well understood that the consummation of the financial arrangement was one of the conditions precedent to such action. The basis for this belief lies in the fact that the officials here were informed when it was first proposed to extend recognition by the United States that the other powers must decline to follow that course because the new Chinese government had not been organized, a condition which apparently still obtains.

HUGE LAKE FORMED BY BREAK IN DIKE

SUBMITS AN OPINION IN FAVOR OF STATE

Atty. John M. Olin Advises That it is Proper to Enact Law Prescribing Corn Syrup Label.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Madison, April 28.—The probable course of the state dairy and food department in amending the law relating to the branding of corn syrup is suggested in an opinion to Dairy and Food Commissioner J. Q. Emery by John M. Olin, counsel for the state in the corn syrup case. He advises that it is proper for the legislature to enact a law providing that the product is labeled to show the percentage of the different ingredients.

He holds that such a law would be in aid of and not in opposition to, a national law on the subject.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Marinette, April 28.—John Brosseau, a Canadian woodsman, who died at the county alms house recently and was buried in the potters field, possessed an estate of $60,000 according to a relative who arrived here today to make an investigation.

Becoming embittered by the slight placed upon him, Brosseau left his family in anger and came to the United States. He worked in the woods as a common woodsman and was well known character about the lumber camps of Escanaba.

RENEWED OUTBREAK THREATENS MEXICO

Huerta and Diaz Followers Are Hopelessly Divided According to Persistent Rumors

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, April 28.—A rapidly growing situation in Mexico City fraught with friction between the Huerta and Diaz factions of the provisional government is reported in confidential advices and these reports are augmented by agents of the Carranza constitutionalists arriving here.

Robert Pesquiera, a member of the Mexican house of deputies, arrived here today to succeed Jondales Jante as confidential agent of the Carranza forces. Gantes has been assigned to a special mission, the nature of which is not disclosed, but it is believed he is going to Europe. Reports of the situation in Mexico City confirm earlier advices of the tenacity of the relations of Diaz to Huerta. Between the two officials practically all government forces in the federal district have divided into two armed corps. Huerta has added to the infantry at the national palace and Diaz has encamped the bulk of the artillery on his estate, Hacienda del Cristito about 30 miles away.

Mondragon, minister of war, is in practical possession of the citadel where other artillery are quartered.

Judges Brown, Bond and Walker dissented as to the temporary restraining order. The companies are given ten days to show cause why they should not be enjoined permanently from cancelling present contracts.

ASSOCIATED PRESS STOUTLY DEFENDED BY FRANK B. NOYES

PRESIDENT OF THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWS GATHERING ASSOCIATION HOLDS CORPORATION FOR PUBLIC GOOD.

ACCURACY IS SOUGHT

One Third of the Newspapers Join to Secure Quickest, Cheapest and Most Reliable News Service Possible.

President Frank B. Noyes of the Associated Press, one of the largest news-gathering associations in the world, has issued the following complete statement as to the workings of the association in an article published in the May number of the North American Review.

By Frank B. Noyes. President of the Associated Press. "Probably no institution is more widely known by name than The Associated Press and, on the other hand, more vaguely understood by the public generally as to its organization and its functions. For whatever cause this may be, that it is a fact is daily apparent."

The Associated Press is an association of something over eight hundred and fifty newspapers, operating under a charter of the State of New York as a mutual aid co-operative organization for the interchange and collection of news. Under the terms of its charter "the corporation is not to make a profit nor to make or declare dividends and is not to engage in the business of selling intelligence nor traffic in the same."

In other words, The Associated Press is simply a common agent of its members by which they arrange an interchange of the news that each collects, and is bound by its membership obligation to contribute for the common use of its fellow-members and also as the agency through which reports of foreign and certain classes of domestic happenings are collected served by the organization.

The fact that in the present year we celebrate the twentieth anniversary of the first nation-wide co-operative and non-profit-making news-gathering organization in the world seems to make the publication of something respecting it timely.

The Associated Press is in no wise the master of the newspapers constituting its membership; it is distinctly their servant. Its board of directors is composed of active newspapermen chosen at annual meetings by the membership and in an experience running through twenty years of intimate connection with the present organization and also that of the older Illinois corporation, I have never known an instance in all the changing personnel of boards of directors when there was any departure from the most rigid observance of the highest obligations of trusteeship and disregard of private and selfish interests. The president, vice-presidents, and members of the board of directors serve without salaries.

The Associated Press of today is the outcome of a many-year struggle between two opposing systems. One, that of news-gathering concerns with private or limited ownership, which wealth at arm's length with newspapers.

TO NAME COMMITTEE FOR INVESTIGATION OF STATE FAIR SITES

Speaker Hull Will Make Announcement Tomorrow Although Probable Selection is Already Known.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., April 28.—The announcement of the nine men who are to constitute the membership of the special committee to investigate sites for the state fair will be made tomorrow by Speaker Hull and the Lieutenant Governor Morris. Speaker Hull has decided to appoint two men who represent the two opposite views on the question of removal in the lower house—Assemblymen George Carpenter of Baraboo and Charles H. Everett of Racine.

The other four men from the House will be selected from communities which have no direct interest in the location of the fair in their immediate community. It has practically been decided to appoint Assemblymen D. D. Conway of Grand Rapids, A. Gulickson of Cameron, Hans M. Larsonson of Shell Lake, and possibly Dell H. Richards of Ladysmith. One other will be selected from the democratic contingent. It is said the only men who thus far has been decided upon in the senate is Senator M. F. White of Winnebago, who favors moving the fair to the Fox River valley.

Under the terms of the bill, the committee is required to make its report to the legislature by May 24. The committee will begin work within two days from the time of appointment, and will visit every proposed site in the state.

ASSAULT ON GIRL IS PUT ON TRIAL

Alleged Fiend Faces Death Penalty—Sheriff Takes Precautions to Forestall a Lynching.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Salem, Ill., April 28.—The interest of this entire section has been revived in the case of Thomas Sullens, an Ernest Harrison, who a month ago narrowly escaped lynching for their alleged part in the attack on fourteen-year-old Dorothy Holt. The case was called in court today and it is expected that the trial will proceed without delay. The sheriff is taking extraordinary precautions to prevent disorder, as it has been rumored that an attempt might be made to carry out the postponed lynching when the two men are brought into court for trial.

Miss Holt, the young daughter of Assistant State's Attorney C. N. Holt, was attacked in an abandoned barn, a mile from this city, on the night of March 14. According to the girl's story she was kidnapped in the early evening within a stone's throw of her home and dragged to the barn, nearly a mile distant, from which place she made her escape and returned home the following morning. When the victim of the attack was able to tell her story she named Tom Sullens, a well known character about town, as her assailant. Sullens was arrested and is alleged to have confessed his guilt, pleading that he was drunk at the time. He also declared that he had kidnapped Miss Holt at the instigation of Ernest Harrison, who had been prosecuted by Judge Holt, the father of the girl, for keeping a "blind tiger." When the story became public the excitement in the town reached fever heat and only the prompt action of Governor Duane in calling out the militia saved the two men from being lynched at the hands of an angry mob.

Since the arrest the two men have been kept under heavy guard. Sullens being confined in jail at Mount Vernon and Harrison at Vandalia. Unless will be tried on a charge of kidnapping, which carries the penalty of death. Harrison, it is understood, will be prosecuted on a charge of conspiracy.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Peavey of Washburn. The health officer is to be appointed by the governor for a term of six years at a salary of $5,000 a year. The present secretary of the state board of health receives $3,500. ## RUSH TARIFF DEBATE IN THE HOUSE TODAY

REPUBLICANS AND DEMOCRATS ANXIOUS TO HAVE LAST ARGUMENT ON UNDERWOOD MEASURE.

PROS AND CONS GIVEN

Payne-Aldrich Measure Comes in for Attack and for Commendation in Course of Day's Speeches.

Washington, April 28.—A rush of speech making on the final day of general debate on the tariff bill made lively proceedings in the house. Most of the members had held back with a view to getting the larger audiences expected with the closing of the general debate and the shifting of the consideration of the Underwood tariff revision to a reading of the measure under the five minute rule beginning tomorrow.

Chairman Underwood has not changed his view that the bill should be disposed of in the house with in a week from today and that the sugar schedule is not likely to offer much real trouble. He hoped that unless the fight of the anti-free wool advocates spreads, the bill enters from the senate substantially in the form in which it stands.

Rainey Defends Bill. Representative Rainey of Illinois, who has charge of the agricultural schedule of the bill as a member of the ways and means committee. Representative Murdock of Kansas, the leader of the progressives, along with Representative Chandler of New York and others of that party, and some of the leaders of the republicans, were on today's speaking program. Mr. Rainey declared that the bill represented the dawn of a new era in the government's fiscal policy, "making lighter the burdens of taxes upon consumers and compelling great wealth to contribute its fair share toward paying the government's expenses." He pointed out that no government that adopted an income tax system and had given it a fair trial had repealed it.

"We make the tax highest upon the great income and lowest upon the small incomes, taxing 425,000 in all and expecting to collect from them at least seventy million dollars."

Income Tax Revenue. He said the tax would reach 25,000 incomes, that amount to be between $4,000 and $5,000 a year from which the government expects to collect only $600,000, an average of 3 per cent income, and would reach 100 in come amounting to more than one million dollars each year from which a collection of nearly 50 million dollars is expected.

Mr. Rainey said he knew of no swollen fortunes which had not been made possible by the favors of government and that a protected tariff conferred upon protected interests the right not only to levy taxes, but to collect and distribute them in dividends to the holding of several stock.

No Government Taxes. "Nearly everything the consumer buys is taxed and the taxes he pays it he buys. American goods do not find their way into the treasury of the United States," said Mr. Rainey. He declared that the revision would end the alliance between the protected woolen mills of the east and the wool producing states of the west.

"This," he concluded, "is not a free trade bill, but it will fall of its purpose if it does not bring about a free exchange between the products of this and other countries, each nation and section producing what it is best adapted to produce and trading its products for the products of other sections and nations."

No Grounds For Protest. Democratic leader Underwood contends the United States "is entirely within its rights in the provisions of the bill against which foreign nations have protested. The clause which would grant a 5-percent preference on goods imported in American vessels and which has caused protests from a number of nations. Mr. Underwood says, is to encourage the building of American ships and he believes it violates no treaty."

Payne Attacks Bill. Representative Payne ranking republican member of the ways and means committee defended the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, and declared the Underwood bill as a tariff for revenue measure, "a signal failure."

"If this bill becomes a law as it now stands the next four years will be years of weary waiting," he said. "What the proposed bill is a revision downward, I frankly admit," Mr. Payne concluded.

Wilson's Attitude. President Wilson feels that prospect for current legislation during the present session of congress, depend not only on the dispatch with which the tariff bill is disposed of, but upon progress toward a common agreement as to what should constitute banking reform.

The president is in hopes that the informal discussions and preliminary investigation going on among current reform advocates will lead to a general understanding before very long.

DAVIES WILL MIND PARTY PLEDGES AS NEW TRUST BUSTER

Madison Man Named Commissioner of Corporations Considers Big Business Largest Question Facing Country.

Joseph E. Davies, of Madison, democratic national committeeman from Wisconsin, whose appointment as commissioner of corporations by President Wilson was announced in an Associated Press dispatch in the Gazette Saturday night, is on his way to Madison to prepare to take up his residence in Washington and handle the affairs of his office. Mr. Davies' appointment to this important office does not come as a surprise to the Janesville friends as it has long been known that he was slated for something or other under the present democratic administration. Aside from this position Mr. Davies will practically act as distributor of federal patronage in Wisconsin to the faithful under the Wilson administration.

Just before leaving Washington for Madison Saturday night, Mr. Davies gave out his vision of his new office in the following interview: "The position of commissioner of corporations is one which has many attractions for me. In my judgment the next big question to be decided by the American people is that of the relations between this government and big business. I feel that I have been highly honored to have been given the privilege of taking part in the difficult task of solving that question."

Stands by Party Pledges. "I realize that this is going to be a man's size job and I am not going to say anything about what I shall do," he said. "The Democratic platform, and the known views of the president however, leave little for conjecture as to the general policy of this office. You may be sure I shall not depart from the Democratic doctrine which the people approved last November. I shall give the best that is in me to fulfill my duties creditably and do honor to the state where I was born."

Declines Island Post. Mr. Davies gave Washington a new thrill when he declined President Wilson's proffered appointment as governor-general of the Philippines. "It was not recalled that any one had ever declined that important post. The appointment announced is regarded as a particularly significant proof of the president's confidence in the Wisconsin leader. It is known that the proper settlement of the trust question is very close to President Wilson's heart. His selection of Mr. Davies for the difficult task of carrying out the administration's policies in this regard is considered ample evidence of the president's faith in Mr. Davies."

The president decided not to appoint ex-Congressman Lynden Evans, Chicago, even after he had been endorsed by Secretary Redfield. President Wilson said he wanted a Progressive. The position was held for years by Herbert Knox Smith.

Wants Non-Corporation Men. The president, it is said, plans to have non-corporation lawyers put on the federal bench and as United States district attorneys in all parts of the country. The commissioner of corporations will be expected to obtain evidence which to base prosecutions and the position is one that will be congenial to Mr. Davies and in line with his professional work.

Stand Close to President. Mr. Davies stands very close to the president, and when for various reasons it was found impractical to give him a place in the cabinet, he was given a choice of several positions, including an ambassadorship, but Mr. Davies did not want to leave the country. As western manager of the presidential campaign he showed both good judgment and good executive ability. As a politician of foresight and wisdom he greatly impressed not only President Wilson, but all with whom he came in contact.

Manager Western Campaign. Mr. Davies is a graduate of both the literary and law departments of the state university and after practicing his profession at Watertown for four years moved to Madison, where he has since lived and there he is a member of the law firm of Ayer, Davies, Mitchell & Hill. Mr. Ayerward was appointed federal attorney for the western district of Wisconsin a few years ago.

Mrs. Davies is a daughter of the late Col. J. H. Knight of Ashland.

CHURCH-BUILDING PLANNED FOR LUTHERAN STUDENTS

The Rev. Howard Gold of Madison Explains Situation at University to Janesville Parish.

That there are five hundred Lutheran students at the University of Wisconsin, twice as many as attend Mableton College, a Lutheran school, and more Lutheran students in all the state universities than in all the church colleges were among the significant statements made by the Rev. Howard Gold, pastor of the English Lutheran church at Madison, in address made at St. Peter's English Lutheran church last evening. He made a clear exposition of the necessity of the church concerning itself with their moral and spiritual welfare, declaring that unless they are interested in the church during the crucial years of university life, many of them would be lost to it, and go out into business and professional life without the moral balance and spiritual ballast that they require. The Rev. Gold also outlined what had been accomplished in the last six years with the measure equipment provided, and the plans for widening its scope and increasing its effectiveness. The church now owns a site two blocks from the campus for which $15,000 was paid and upon this will be erected a church worthy of the site, and a Lutheran hospice. The church may be made a Martin

STREET IMPROVEMENT SUBJECTS DISCUSSED

Mayor Fathers and Members of City Council With City Attorney Meet With Commercial Club Directors.

Mayor James A. Fathers, Councilmen Roy Cummings and Chancery Milmore and City Attorney Wm. Dougherty, were the guests of the directors of the commercial club at the regular weekly noon day meeting held at the Myers hotel this noon, at the expense of the individual directors. The city officials were invited to be present to discuss the matter of street improvements. The benefit to the city as a whole to have its main highways leading into the city put into such improved condition so as to be passable at any season of the year was conceded and the councilmen made clear their desire for permanent street improvement. Mayor Fathers pointed out the difficulties the council met with in putting into action their plans, the opposition of property owners and the care necessary to be just with all concerned. He favored the improvement of Milton Ave. from St. Mary's Ave. north and said the council will be working out a plan at present to improve that portion of the street. He pointed out the difficulties to overcome in making a permanent improvement on this street, the amount of farm lands abutting, etc. It was suggested by Mr. Carle that the business and progressive people of the city might be interested enough in the improvement of these main highways to help out to some degree on the expense, as everybody admits the need for good entrance highways to the city. It is to be hoped that whatever street improvement may be made, will be of a thorough permanent character. The question of the legality of the street improvement charge as it is made against the property owner at present was discussed and City Attorney Dougherty stated that the law made it possible for the council to assess costs in the manner they saw fit.

ENJOIN PRINTING OF POSTAL CARDS

Preliminary Injunction Granted Was Granted Against Printing Pictures of Superintendent.

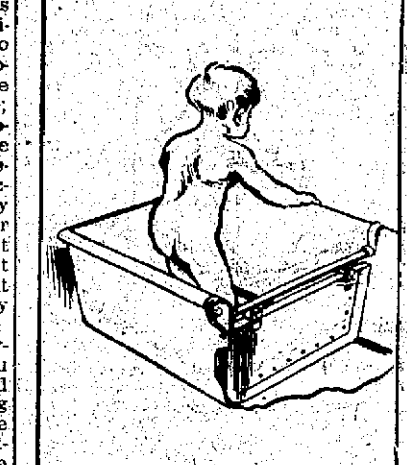

[AT ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Pittsburgh, April 28.—A preliminary injunction was granted in common pleas court today restraining three printing companies from printing and distributing post cards bearing the pictures of S. L. Heeter, superintendent of the Pittsburgh public schools and Ethel I. Fisher, the former domestic in his household, on whose serious charges he was recently acquitted. The printing companies are also required to turn over to the court all plates for the printing of the post cards as well as all cards containing the pictures to which Heeter objects.

BATHTUB ATTACHMENT

Movable Partition Permits Use of Portion of the Tub.

If water meters are ever installed in private homes to a general extent, the bath tub attachment designed by a New Mexico man and shown herewith should find demand. A bar with hooks on both ends can be raised on the rim of the tub. Swinging from this bar is a solid rubber partition that can be extended a trifle so that it fits snugly and water-tight against the sides of the tub. This partition can be moved to any point and fixed there, forming a shortened space.

SAVES TIME AS WELL AS WATER

which is especially convenient for a foot bath. In addition to the saving of water, which does not appeal to every body, this attachment has another advantage, which does appeal to most people—it saves time. If only a limited space is required, it can be fixed in a fraction of the time that it would take to fill the whole tub to the same depth.

Sport Shop Shots

By Don McCarty

Luther McCarty will make his first appearance since winning the white heavyweight championship when he fights Frank Moran ten rounds in the St. Nicholas rink at New York next Wednesday night. He has worked in to good shape under the direction of Tom McCarney. New York fight fans are going to look him over as probable participant in a match with Gunboat Smith, who so decisively defeated Bombardier Wells the British champion.

A world's record is claimed for Christy Matheson by Manager John J. McGraw of the New York Giants. In a recent game against Philadelphia Matheson pitched only 67 balls, 4-7-9 to each of the three batsmen who would face him in an inning. Had he fanned everyone he would have had to deliver at least 81 balls. Matheson put 'em where the batter had to hit, and on 'but five of the connections fielders were in the way.

As Jimmy Chen of the Chicago Cubs, called by many the best catcher in baseball, is a better batter than Vic Saier, the regular first baseman, he may be played steadily at first base. Manager Evers is anxious to keep Roger Bresnahan behind the bat as much as possible.

The roster of the Covington club of the new Federal League looks like an index from an ancient history. On it are such lights as former days as Jack Sadow, former Cincinnati pitcher; Ambrose Putnam, formerly with the New York Yankees; Jack Pfeister, once a Chicago Cub; Bill Bartle, at one time with Jersey City; Sam Leaver, who hurled the Pittsburgh Pirates to several pennants; and Al

Kaiser, former Cub and Boston Brave. Washington Senators, is after a home plate shut-out record. In 26 successive innings he has held the opposition scoreless. In his most recent game against the Boston Red Sox he threw 89 balls, of which 66 were strikes. He allowed but to hits.

The Cincinnati swat has made its appearance as an official part of baseball. President Ban Johnson of the American League has ordered that when a fielder handling a bunt tries to get a base-runner at third base or home plate and fails, while the bunt is safe at first, the batter shall be given a hit. Cincinnati scorers have used this system for a long time.

Rai Moore of Philadelphia and Jack Britton of Chicago have been debarred from further boxing in the Quaker City Sporting men registered with the director of public safety a strong protest at an alleged fake bout the two pulled off recently.

Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion, who is to meet Johnny Dundee at Los Angeles April 29, says: "I am going to stop Dundee inside the limit. It is the first place I want to show that he has business in the ring with me, and in the second place a knockout will give weight to my challenge to Willie Ritchie."

Immaculate white flannel togs will envelop the persons of the American League umpires on special occasions this season. President Ban Johnson has so ordered. Maybe he'll order green hats with bows on the south-west corner before long.

been practically sold out for the contest. The two fighters concluded their work of preparation today and will rest until the going calls them into the ring at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow night to start their 20-round setto.

GOGGLES MAKE HIM GREAT SUNFIELDER

Jimmy Johnson—Top, without, and below, with 'em.

The fearsome object here depicted tearing up the sod is not a football player, but a young man named Jimmy Johnson, of the St. Louis Browns with his sunfield goggles on. Johnson last year played for the Montgomery team of the Southern League, ranking second in batting with a .320 mark and leading in fielding with a perfect percentage of 64. Johnson is keeping up his good work in select games and should make some of the veterans.

"Babe" Borton.

Manager Jimmy Callahan of the Chicago White Sox is thoroughly satisfied that he has quite some first baseman in the person of "Babe" Borton.

"Babe" this spring has been keeping up his good work of last fall, when in 31 games he ranked fourth in American League batting, hitting the ball for a .371 average. He led the first basemen in fielding with a standing of .997. He came from St. Joseph of the Western League, where he batted .364 and fielded .984.

SCIENCE NOTES

In respect to the length of line covered, the most important electrification of a steam line yet made is that of the Chicago, Milwaukee and Puget Sound Railroad, which has just been authorized by government permission to transmit over the public domain, the current necessary to electrify 400 miles of the road. The current will be supplied by the Great Falls Power Company of Montana and the electrification involves nearly all the trackage in the states of Montana and Idaho. The work will be commenced at once.

In the course of a year an ordinary river is the means of moving a great amount of material other than that carried in the boats, piling of its surface. From the results of a number of examinations it is estimated that the Mississippi River carries annually into the sea, during the average year, 130,400,000 tons of dissolved salts and 340,000,000 tons of mud and other suspended matter—a total of 470,400,000 tons of material extracted by the Mississippi and its tributaries from the rocks and soils of its drainage basin.

A great international gas exposition recently opened in the city of Amsterdam which attracted a great number of exhibitors from all the manufacturing countries of the world. But there was only one exhibitor from the United States. Among the more interesting features was a model of a direct factory for making gas from petroleum residue by a process of dry distillation. This invention is considered of especial importance to the United States on account of our large production of petroleum. Other exhibits included a safety gas motor having automatic devices for preventing explosion from escaping gas; an electrical gas lighter having a lighting switch against the wall, and a burner and mantle which can be used with either end up.

For some time a very active war has been waged in the Philippines against the Filipinos, which formerly killed a half million cattle and horses, but now the number of victims has been reduced to a few thousands annually. This effective work has been done through the assistance of the Philippine Scouts, the services of which were of great value in searching out instances of the existence of the disease and in preventing the introduction of infected cattle into districts which had been cleared of it. Fourteen hundred scouts were utilized in the work, and they were at one time formed into a corps which moved southward, leaving a trail of destruction behind them. It is estimated that in the course of a few years the disease will be entirely eliminated from the islands.

Oklahoma State Shoot.
Pond Creek, Okla., April 28.—Many expert shots faced the traps here today at the opening of the annual tournament of the Oklahoma State Sportsmen's Association. The program for the opening day consisted of five twenty-target events. The tournament will conclude Thursday with the state championship event at fifty targets.

The Farewell Gathering.
The gathering at the social rooms of the Baptist church, last evening was a sort of family assemblage, there being no fixed order of exercises until the noisy gaiety of the scene was an ceremoniously ended by Nathan Dearborn's call to order for the purpose of surprising Mr. Bakeman and his wife by the presentation of some tokens of regard from the congregation. They were about to leave a set of Chambers' Encyclopedia was presented to Mr. B. while his wife was given a handsome silver cake basket. In addition to these numerous private gifts were quietly placed in the hands of the departing couple by their individual friends. Mr. Dearborn made the presentation speeches, and Mr. Bakeman responded in behalf of himself and wife. The affair closed with singing by the Sabbath school pupils.

H. H. BLISS, Mgr.
Subscribed and sworn to before me this 1st day of April, 1913.

OLIVE M. HAYWARD, Notary Public.
My commission expires July 12, 1914.

MIGHTY, THE MIGHTY.

State Dairy and Food Commissioner J. Q. Emery has set himself up as mightier than the mighty. He does not approve of certain articles of manufactured food products, and despite the decision of the supreme court of the United States, that the Wisconsin laws must not conflict with the national food laws, would make his own rule of what is what in the eatable line and compel the citizens of Wisconsin to abide by it. Apparently Mr. Emery believes himself immune from any sort of criticism or discipline and it looks as though the public would have no redress in the matter. He recently gave out his statement as to the status quo of Wisconsin as to the supreme court decision, but in reality he said nothing that might disclose what his plan of intent is as to offering a relief measure with respect to the food and drug laws brought into question by the recent decision of the United States supreme court.

His statement is a mere recitation and reiteration of the claims and allegations he has made in the Corn syrup controversy. In fact the statement is largely a supplement of what Commissioner Emery has always put forth in his contention against corn syrup with some criticism of those in federal authority who seemingly have been unable to support the Wisconsin commissioner in his activities against the sale of this commodity or in his conclusions that the article was misbranded.

With only a few weeks remaining for the consideration of a relief measure which will adequately protect the public as well as adjust the Wisconsin laws so that the dealers in this state will not be discriminated against, to the advantage of those outside of the state, it would seem necessary to take legislative action. This, it is believed, Commissioner Emery will recommend.

This would seem to settle the case in favor of the grocers who have a right to ask the protection and co-operation of the dairy and food department of Wisconsin in securing legislation which does not discriminate against them. Several bills have been introduced covering in a tentative sort of a way the question of uniformity between the federal and state laws. Whether or not they are acceptable to the dairy and food commissioner is not known. They were introduced to protect the question owing to the fact that the time for the introduction of bills without unanimous consent, expired at midnight Tuesday. Assemblyman Fennell had this in mind when he presented his measure Monday night.

In the meantime, it is the purpose of the grocers and their representatives to co-operate to the fullest possible extent with Commissioner Emery in securing such a law as will adjust the Wisconsin conditions with the federal laws. Any assumption that the wholesale or retail grocers of Wisconsin seek to take advantage of the unsettled situation, since the recent decision, is untrue. They are asking for relief in what is admitted to be a conflict of authority by Commissioner Emery as well as by the attorney general, and have a right to expect that this relief as far as it comports with full and adequate protection to the public will be granted.

It would seem to be a mistaken policy to impose unnecessary limitations and restrictions upon the Wisconsin dealer unless some public interest was to be protected, when by reason of these supplemental limitations or restrictions the dealer outside of the state, shipping goods into Wisconsin, is the beneficiary. This is the question the legislature has to meet.

To go into the question as it relates to the corn syrup controversy is in the nature of holding a post mortem examination. The supreme court of the United States has decided, on appeal taken from the Wisconsin supreme court, that the state can not enact legislation in conflict with the statutes of congress passed for the regulation of the subject, and if it does, to the extent that the state law interferes with or frustrates the operation of the acts of congress, its provisions must yield to the superior power given to congress by the constitution.

The effect of this decision is that Dairy and Food Commissioner Emery's contention that corn syrup, as labeled and sold, was misbranded, or that it was sold as corn syrup when it should be sold as glucose, is not sustained. This would seem to settle the case in so far as corn syrup is concerned.

The question now refers to the entire food and drug situation in Wisconsin covering any commodity required under law to be labeled.

THE BELGIAN STRIKE.

There is a lesson taught by the outcome of the Belgian strike that can not fail to be remembered. The Christian Science Monitor treats the matter in the following manner in an editorial of recent date.

"The decision of the strike council at the Maison du Peuple in Brussels to declare the general strike at an end brings to a close one of the most remarkable political incidents of modern times. The general strike was certainly not general, and it had nothing to do with the economic questions which it is usual to connect with a strike. It was not general because the Catholic unions took no part in it. It was not economic because its aims were purely political and had no connection with anything industrial.

"Anybody who would draw a line through Belgium so as to divide the Flemish element in Flanders from the Walloon element outside Flanders would really succeed in finding the point of separation at which the strike ceased to be, or became general. The Fleming represents the Catholic and conservative element. The Walloon represents the radical non-Catholic element. The one talks Flemish, the other a sort of French patois. And so it came about that the divergence took place on racial and religious lines.

"To regard the strike as it ultimately developed as in any way a test of the power of syndicalism would be futile. The syndicalist element practically never entered it at all nor does what has occurred prove that the doctrine of Augustus Sorel is any more possible of accomplishment than it was before. A strike supported by capitalists is a remarkable and peculiar phenomenon and the very possibility of such a thing proves positively that the ordinary lines of cleavage had been wiped out and that what was taking place was something more in the nature of a political revolution than an industrial struggle.

"A political revolution is exactly what has taken place in Belgium. A revolution engineered, with the most extraordinary absence of violence and yet not less a revolution than if people had descended into the streets as in the days of the barricade. It was the extraordinary order and determination of the enormous masses of men on strike which proved the turning point in the struggle. If there had been violence, if there had been an exhibition of any of the means by which a revolution is ordinarily effected, the troops would have been marched on Charleroi, and it would be difficult to say what the result of the struggle might have been.

"The silence and strength of the movement have effected something which has placed political movements of the future on a new basis. It has shown something of the power of adherence to principle. When an enormous mass of the population of a country protests in this way it is impossible for a government not to listen. The Duke of Wellington once declared he would not know how to meet a strike against taxes. He would have been equally dumfounded if he had been asked to meet a strike on the lines of that which has been brought to a successful termination in Belgium.

Brother Joseph.

On Sunday Brother Joseph Dutton, the Janesville man who has given his life to work among the leper colony at the Hawaiian Islands, celebrated the seventieth anniversary of his birth.

Brother Joseph as a young man, made Janesville his home, went to the war from this city and later became a lay brother in the Catholic church, taking the place of Father Damien in the leper colony when the latter died. While not a priest in the Catholic church, his work has been such as to attract world wide attention and the Gazette and his many friends in Janesville, including the Sisters of Mercy, unite in wishing him congratulations on his anniversary day.

EXPOSURE MOMENT

Symptoms.
When a fellow's sort of dopey and his feet drag on the ground and he ain't got no ambition and just wants to sit around, and when he isn't interested in a single sight or sound.

You kin know he's got the Buckwheatpancakeitis.

When the world seems sort of wobbly and he's shaky on his feet. When he has no taste for labor and wants to lie down and sleep. And doesn't think he'll ever want another thing to eat.

It's a cinch he's got the Buckwheatpancakeitis.

When he couldn't run a foot race, or skate once around a rink. And his mind is sort of torpid and he finds it hard to think.

When his hearing's sort of fuddled. When he can't see on the blink. You can bet he's got the Buckwheatpancakeitis.

When, withal, he is good natured and is easy, quite to please. Just so long as you will let him sit around and take his ease. He has got it, but the danger is remote; with this disease.

Folks have always had the Buckwheatpancakeitis.

Buckwheatpancakeitis can be cured by an operation. Cut out the buckwheatpancake.

From the Hickeyville Clarion.
If there is anything which is particularly edifying in this world it is a red-necktie tryin' to climb over a celluloid collar.

Mod. Peters has got a new sap-priler sign which covers the side of his barn and the old place looks more prosperous than it has in a good many years.

Mod. Peters says his wife always thinks of things at the wrong time. She will wake him up in the middle of the night and ask him when he is going to take the screen doors off, and when they are forty miles from home, visitin' relatives, she will ask him if he is ever going to get her washin' machine repaired.

There is not much use in trying to convince some men, and there is never any use in trying to convince any woman.

Elery Watkins, who used to live in Hickeyville forty years ago, has returned to visit his relatives. He says he notices many changes about our village, including a new tin cup on the town pump and seventeen picture shows.

The Masterpiece of Literature.
Dear Sir: What, in your opinion, is the masterpiece of American literature? Kindly answer through your column so that all our club members may know.

CLUBWOMAN.

The masterpiece of American literature, beyond doubt, dear madam is Webster's dictionary. Webster has a style which is all his own, and while it is not light and fluffy and calculated for train reading or hammock diversion, its place in literature cannot be gainsaid. We would not gain-say it even if we knew what gaisany meant.

We have found it a great work, indeed. There is nothing better to prop up the lame corner of a three-legged davenport and when it comes to making high chairs for the little nieces and nephews, on feast days, it is unsurpassed.

Webster can hardly be called optimistic. There seems to be a vein of pessimism running through his entire story and while his plot may at times seem obscure, he is much easier to read than Henry James or Rudyard Kipling. Of course, the reader is left in doubt as to whether the villain gets possession of the mortgages on the old farm, and the fate of the hero is left entirely to the imagination of the reader, but these minor oversights will not be considered by the trained reviewer of books.

Webster's versatility is ever a revelation to us. It seems as though, in the course of his story he uses every word in the English language and his spelling is so nearly perfect that he doesn't slip up on even "punchinidunnity," which is some word, believe us, when one is in a hurry. Webster uses some longer words than that, some of them long enough to wind around ex-President Taft's waist three times and leave room for a bow knot. Webster has a large circulation and is read everywhere except in the newspaper and magazine offices and some of the women's clubs.

Webster is also a remarkable author in that, although he has been dead many years, he continues to write his dictionaries and new editions are out every year. We vote for Webster unconditionally as the champion author and we are sure some of the club women will find his books interesting as well as instructive.

INSANE PATIENTS ESCAPE BUT ARE ALL RECAPTURED
Oshkosh, April 28.—Three male patients at the Northern Hospital for the Insane escaped last night by loosening the bars on a window on the third floor and descending to the ground on the fire escape. Their liberty was short-lived, however, for they were captured two hours later.

WOMAN DOCTOR IS CHIEF FLY-SWATTER

Dr. Jean Dawson of Cleveland, O., is the boss fly-swatter of this country. Not only does she swat flies, of which she is the sworn and devoted enemy, but she has all the school children swatting them and has enlisted the newspapers in the good work. She is head of the biology department of the public schools and is able to get in educative fly-swatting work on the youngsters. She has made Cleveland the most nearly flyless city in the country.

Mrs. Perrin C. Cothran.
Finding White House social activity too strenuous for her, Mrs. Perrin C. Cothran of North Carolina, niece of President Wilson, is now in Paris with her mother, Mrs. Anna Wilson Howe of Philadelphia. They expect to stay there a year or so, resting and studying music together.

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

ONE TOUCH OF NATURE.

The world is growing in kindness. Brotherhood is becoming more than a preacher's phrase.

The late floods in Ohio and Indiana and the disasters by wind and storm in other states have once more revealed the universal sympathy of man for man.

From the president of the United States down the response of the nation was quick and substantial.

Messages of sympathy poured in from the whole world. Every agency—the Red Cross, the army, the churches, national, state and city governments—joined in the work of mercy.

It is so in every catastrophe. The San Francisco earthquake, the sinking of the Titanic, the Messina horror, each contributed its chapter to the book of human brotherhood.

The wealth of affection revealed compensates, if that were possible, for the sickening loss of life and property.

With the passage of the years we are growing more human, which means that we are approximating more nearly to the divine standard.

We are approaching, that happy era when the whole human race shall be one family.

After nineteen hundred years we are beginning to be Christian; to reflect the Sermon on the Mount in our everyday lives.

Beginning, mind you. We still have a long way to go on that road.

We are also learning that complete individuality is only possible in complete brotherhood; that we can live our own lives best only when we are in full sympathy with the lives of others.

This is a wealthy age, but it is not richer in order than in inner treasures. It sometimes requires the destruction of the outward wealth to reveal that in the spirit of man.

"And now abideth faith, hope and charity, these three, but the greatest of these is charity."

Perhaps a better translation would make it "faith, hope and loving kindness."

The floods of the central west brought forth equal floods of loving kindness from the hearts of the people.

The physical waters of destruction have receded, but the life giving waters of love will flow on forever.

lessly thrown match or cigar stub.
William J. Courvoisier discovered the presence of fire in the building as soon as he stepped into the smoke filled hall, and hastening across the street, turned in an alarm from box 23. The department was on the scene in a few moments and put out the fire with chemicals before it had time to catch on the floor or walls. In the chance happens that any of the offices or halls in the building are in use on Sunday and only the timely discovery of the fire prevented its gaining a good start.
A grass fire at the corner of Sharon and Fremont streets gave the firemen a little exercise with broom drill
Saturday night at about 8:30 o'clock.
This morning at 7:30 o'clock the department was called out by a still alarm to put out a fire in the home of Joseph T. Shields, 1201 Vista avenue.
It is believed that a boy playing with matches started the fire in the hay which was used for packing the lower part of the walls. The flames were just eating their way through the side of the wall and creeping up when turned from them and served to extinguish the fire.

BLAMED MONROE WHISKEY FOR STARTING TROUBLE

Man Arraigned in Municipal Court on Charge of Intoxication. Finds Fault With Beverage.
Monroe whiskey was blamed by George Long, arraigned in the municipal court this morning on a charge of intoxication, for getting him into trouble. He had boarded the train here with a bottle of the seductive beverage, and by the time he arrived in Janesville it had affected his navigation. Long paid a fine of $2 and costs. James Hennessey was not able to pay a fine of $3 and costs after pleading guilty to a similar offense and went to jail for seven days. He had not been in court for about two years according to his own statement.
Both men were placed under arrest
Saturday night.

Blue Nose.
Blue Nose is a popular name for a native of Nova Scotia. Haliburton, in "Sam Slick" gives the following account of its origin: "Pray, sir," said one of my fellow passengers, "can you tell me why the Nova Scotians are called Blue Noses? It is the name of a potato," said I, "which they produce in the greatest perfection, and boast to be the best in the world. The Americans, have, in consequence,
given them the nickname Blue Noses."

LAUNDRY INSTALLS A SMOKE CONSUMER

Troy Steam Laundry First in City to Take Step—Device Successful and a Fuel Economy.
To the Troy Steam Laundry, 14-16
South Jackson street, belongs the distinction of installing the first successful smoke consumer in Janesville, and of preparing for a permanent compliance with the smoke ordinance. Before the consumer was put in, it was not an unusual and even a frequent occurrence to find particles of soot drifting down through the air for the radius of a block from the laundry.
Smokestacks which belched forth volumes of dense black smoke. This morning, when the fires were started up for the first time since the installation of the consumer, the thick smoke that issued from the stack while the fire was fresh was almost white, and later when a very hot fire was burning, the smoke was scarcely perceptible.

Not only is the device guaranteed to consume smoke, but it is also warranted to save ten per cent in coal consumed. Some who have installed the consumer claim as high a saving as fifteen or twenty per cent.
It is simple in construction, not liable to get out of order, and requires but very little attention. The first cost is not high, nor does it require a great deal of time for installation.

Superheated steam is passed into the main combustion chamber of the fire box, and into a secondary one at the rear. This operation causes the formation of water gas, which when burned creates such an intense heat that all free carbon or soot is consumed.

It is expected that others whose chimneys and furnaces have been nuisances will soon follow suit, since there is no longer any excuse for maintaining one.

add laundry installs.
Later it was learned that the Caloric Manufacturing Company has installed a smoke consumer of the same type which under the test effected a fuel economy of sixteen per cent.
The Hohenadel Canning Company is also installing one.

CONTEST AT BELOIT NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT

Janesville Contestants Expected to Make Good Showing Against Beloit and Evansville Representatives.
Friday night is the date set for the league contest between a declamatory. The contest will take place in the Beloit high school auditorium.
Beloit, Janesville and Evansville will be represented by very strong speakers, and a close contest is assured.
Evelyn Welsh will represent the local high school in the declamatory contest, while Allen Dearborn will orate against two other contestants. Both are confident of winning, although Mr.
Dearborn is suffering a severe cold at present. He will speak on "Modern Education," the name orator which won him first place in the contest held here several weeks ago. Evelyn Welsh will have a new declamation to present and she is learning it this week. Some misunderstanding has forced her to leave another selection and even though it is a late hour in which to prepare over again, Miss Welsh is confident of winning in declamation on Friday night.

galls asked that damages be fixed at $25,000 and accepted a tender of judgment of $201 and costs, amounting in all to $485.63. Mr. Odell objected to the offer as unauthorized and Olin Butler & Curckett of Madison, his attorneys, moved the court to set aside the judgment.

KISSIMMEE CIVIC LEAGUE GETS JANESVILLE PLANS

Drinking Fountain.
Through its president, Mrs. Garde Morton Murphy, the Civic League of Kissimmee, Osceola county, Florida, has acknowledged with thanks the receipt of plans and specifications of the concrete drinking fountain on Milton avenue, mailed them by City Engineer C. V. Kersch at their request.
They write that the design is much admired and that it will be the basis for a fountain there. Pictures of this and the Spring Rock fountain were published in the columns of the Gazette some time ago.

THEORY.

"How do you suppose Stegins even-came to write me such an elaborately barbaric letter about so slight a matter?" "Very possibly," replied Miss Cayenne, "he has just employed a new stenographer and is trying to show off."

Right Kind of a Job.
Try to get a job so important they will say you have landed in your resignation if you get fired.—Aitchison

ONE WEEK REMAINS TO ENTER CONTEST

Gazette Corn Growing Competition
Will Attract Large Number of Rock County Boys.
With one week remaining for boys under twenty years of age to enter the Gazette corn growing contest, it is expected that the number of entries within the next few days will be very large. The prizes offered are attractive and the returns in good sound corn desirable for seed will amply repay any boy for additional work.
The interest in corn contest is growing throughout the country and in Wisconsin especially. The Racine county Agricultural school is conducting a contest very similar to the one which the Gazette has instituting. Their list of prizes is not as good as the Gazette offers but thirty-five boys have already entered and prospects for at least fifty are promising.

The Gazette plans to have over fifty in the contest and would like at least one hundred boys entered if such is possible. The matter of pure bred seed and more intensified farming methods is no longer a theoretical matter. It involves dollars and cents for the man who applies them and means a good profit over old methods with but little added expense and no more work.
Six more days remain in which to be entered in the Gazette's contest. If you aren't on the list now don't hesitate any longer. It's a matter of being a booster for Rock county and for yourself.

HAD RATHER REMAIN IN NATIVE COUNTRY

Beloit Italian Gets Divorce from Wife Who Refused to Join Him in His American Home.

Because his wife had refused to join him in his American home, Aristide De Benedetta, a native of Italy, now a full citizen, and a resident of Beloit, secured a divorce from Carmela De Benedetta in the circuit court this afternoon. Dr. Benedetta left Italy some eleven years ago with the intention of making his fortune on the west side of the Atlantic. His young wife was left in the native land until he could be sure of a permanent home in the United States.
He sent her money from time to time,
some $300 in all, but she finally refused to join him in his home on this side of the water.

Two other divorces were granted
by Judge Grimm this afternoon.
Sarah J. McBride secured a separation from George G. McBride, both of Beloit, on the grounds of cruelty and habitual drunkenness. The plaintiff was given the custody of the minor children.

Florence Belle Courtney was divorced from Robert Courtney both of Janesville, on the grounds of cruelty.
In the case of A. G. Carpenter vs.
the Gregg Tea and Coffee Company, testimony of which was taken by the court last week, decision was given in favor of the defendant, the court maintaining that the plaintiff had forfeited her homestead rights to the land in Beloit which has been sold under execution to satisfy the defendant and company who had a judgment against the plaintiff.

The case of Frank Murphy vs.
Amanda Holmes, an action to enforce specific performance of a land contract, was also taken up by the court today and a large amount of testimony taken.

sociation Organized Last Saturday.
At the gathering of printers from all parts of the southern part of the state in the Gazette library Saturday afternoon last, it was decided to organize a Rock River Valley Ben Franklin association. A temporary organization was perfected with J. S.
Hubbard of Beloit, president, Frank D. Shawson of Janesville, secretary and treasurer, and a committee on by-laws was named, composed of Messrs. Woodle of Monroe, Kueck of Janesville and Burt Hoard of Fort Atkinson. It was decided to meet in Janesville, on May 10th to perfect the organization, at which time it is expected that representatives of the craft from almost all of the surrounding counties, as well as many from Rockford and Illinois cities will be present.

pers to which they sold news at such profit as might be secured, and over which the newspapers, who bought from them had no more control than over the paper-mill supplying them with print paper.

The other system is based on the theory that a powerful, privately owned and controlled news-gathering agency is a menace to the press and people.

Determined to establish an agency subject only to the control of the newspaper for whom it acted, in 1892 a group of western men, composing the Western Associated Press began a fight to attain this end, and since that time a contest between these two opposing principles has been waged. In asserting that the Associated Press is today situated as the servant and agent of the newspaper for which it acts, I have no thought of minimizing the tremendous importance of the work it does as such an agent, but wish simply to emphasize the thought that properly speaking it has no entity of its own, no mission save to serve its members.

Its members are scattered from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from Canada to the Gulf, and represent every possible shade of political belief, religious faith, and economic sympathy. It is obvious that the Associated Press can have no partisan or factional bias, no religious affiliation, no capitalist or pro-labor trend.

Its function is simply to furnish its members with a truthful, clean, comprehensive, non-partisan and this in its broadest sense—report of the news of the world as expeditiously as is compatible with accuracy and economy.

Now do these newspapers, constituting its membership contribute first, the news of their localities and second, weekly assessments of money aggregating about $3,000,000 per annum with which an extensive system of leased wires is maintained, ($2,000 miles of wire in the daytime and 28,000 miles of wire at night), bureaus in the principal American cities supplementing and collating the news of local newspapers and bureaus for the original collection of news through out the world.

The volume of the news report to members varies greatly, ranging from five hundred words daily by telegraph or telephone to papers able to utilize but a small amount of general news matter to more than fifty thousand words daily, or thirty-five newspaper columns in the more important cities. The method of collecting foreign news has recently changed in recent years. Formerly the Associated Press collected its foreign service in London, receiving the news there of the Reuters Company, of the Wolff Agency of Germany, and of the Havas Agency of France, with smaller affiliated agencies in Italy and Spain.

The objection to this method was that the news as received in London was alleged to be impressed with an English bias—in any event it was conceded not collected from an American viewpoint.

To meet this criticism, the Associated Press has established regular bureaus of its own in all the great news centers, and now maintains offices and staffs in London, Paris, Berlin, Rome, St. Petersburg, Tokio, Peking, Mexico City, and Havana, in addition to hundreds of individual correspondents scattered throughout the world.

It is probable that in the foreign news field the extraordinary genius of Melville E. Stone, the general manager of the Associated Press, has been most strikingly exhibited. Just prior to the Russo-Japanese War Mr. Stone secured from the Tsar of Russia the abolition of the censorship, and newspaper men still remember the remarkable frankness with which the Russian government gave out the news of Russia's reserves in that conflict.

Orders expressing the messages of the Associated Press were issued at its instance by the German, French, Italian, and Russian governments, and as a result it has come to be common for European capitals to get the first news of continental events through Associated Press reports cabled back from New York.

One beneficial result coming from this more direct relationship is to be found in the minimizing of the ill effects of the international outbreak of some utterly inconsequential German, French, English, or Japanese, or "yellow," sporadically abusing the United States and its people.

Formerly profound significance of a wide-spread hostility was attached to such outpourings. With the closer understanding that comes from more intimate knowledge, we now understand the relative importance of the newspapers of other countries as we are able to see for our own. The disadvantage of lack of news touch is strikingly apparent in the relations of the United States with the Central and South American nations. These countries secure their news of the United States by way of Europe and it consists mainly of murders, lynchings, and embezzlements. The antipathy of the United States to the people of these countries is undoubtedly largely due to the false perspective given by the newspapers. It is in truth we were the kind of people they are led to believe we are they would be fully justified in their attitude.

It has been the aim of those entrusted with the management of the Associated Press to secure, as it were, representatives both at home and abroad men of high character and attainments, and it may, I think, be fairly assumed that the reputation for accuracy and fairness that its service enjoys is largely to be attributed to an unusual measure of success in this endeavor.

While the Associated Press is generally held in good esteem, I would not be understood as indicating that it has been exempt from criticism and attack.

If in a campaign all the candidates, or their managers or press agents did not accuse The Associated Press of the grossest partisanship, against the particular candidacy in which they were interested, those bearing the responsibilities of the service would feel convinced that something was radically wrong and would look with suspicion on the report themselves. This is but human nature. During the last campaign for the presidential nominations every candidate either in person or by proxy expressed his conviction that the Associated Press was favorable to somebody else.

Mr. Wilson's press agent asserted that our service was pro-Clark, and in the opinion of Speaker Clark we had sold out to the Wilson people. Mr. Taft's managers felt that he was not being given a fair show, and Mr. Roosevelt was firm in his conviction that the avenues of information had been choked to his disadvantage.

Of course, later we know that Mr. Wilson does not share the only for publication views of his press agent and Speaker Clark is as emphatic in his withdrawal as in his hasty charges. Mr. Taft's managers realize that The Associated Press cannot report speeches that he does not make, and Mr. Roosevelt must see a fair show, and Mr. Roosevelt must see a fair show, and Mr. Roosevelt must see a fair show.

With all this, however, goes a fundamental misunderstanding of the functions of The Associated Press. The individual correspondent or reporter for a given newspaper or a small group of newspapers, having a common bias may be permitted to indulge in partisanship or in propaganda. This is absolutely not to be permitted in The Associated Press. No bias of any sort can be allowed. Our function is to supply our members with news, not views; with news as it happens—not as we may want it to happen. Intensely as its management may sympathize with any movement, no propaganda in its behalf can be tolerated. Very jealously indeed does the membership guard against their going outside its allotted duties and exercising the censorship of every hand of our copy.

It is not naturally to be claimed that no mistakes are made. They are made and will be made. But in the very nature of the business, with the heart so worn upon their sleeve, devotion very swiftly follows, and the mistakes are few and far between.

The desire to enlist The Associated Press in propaganda or advocacy is a fault to be found at the bottom of criticisms of its service. Added to this, often is misinformation as to the real facts and sometimes, though happily rarely, actual malice.

The service from Russia, for example, has been harshly criticized by some who thought that the province of the Associated Press was to undertake a crusade against the Russian government because of its anti-Semitism. Our theory of our obligation is that we should report the facts as they occur, without fear or favor, but that it is no part of our duty to draw indictments save as the facts alone are damning.

The case of the Koreans charged with a plot to assassinate Governor General Terauchi has recently been much discussed.

These Koreans were almost all converted Christians, and the American missionaries in Korea were naturally intensely interested in the matter. It was freely alleged that The Associated Press, unduly influenced by the Japanese government, had suppressed the fact that these Koreans had made confessions, implicating American missionaries as accessories to the plot, and had subsequently retracted these confessions, asserting that they had been extorted by atrocious torture inflicted by the Japanese police, the intimation being also that the missionaries were in peril by reason of the repudiated confessions.

Based on this some of the missionary authorities here became much perturbed, and indeed one of the great New York papers printed news and editorial articles, criticizing The Associated Press for the suppression of the matter.

As a matter of fact, an inspection of the news service received by The Associated Press and distributed to its members showed that it carried the full facts, the confessions, the implications of the missionaries, the allegations of torture, the fact that the missionaries were in peril by reason of the Japanese denial of the torture stories and attached no credence whatever to the prisoners' statements implicating the missionaries.

On learning this real situation, the New York newspapers in question promptly printed an ample and honorable but I do not doubt that still full of some dereliction.

Another cause of frequent misapprehension is in the general tendency of newspaper readers to attribute anything seen in print to The Associated Press, and it is constantly necessary to explain that some violently printed or inappreciated articles are the work of "special" and not a part of our service.

Any way back in the middle of the last century an alliance, offensive and defensive, existed between the old New York Associated Press, a news-selling organization owned by seven New York papers, and the Western Union Telegraph Company under the terms of which the New York Associated Press dealt solely with the Western Union. The Western Union, thus, discriminating rates and advantages to the New York Associated Press.

Although this arrangement (in the light of today a very improper one) was abolished more than thirty years ago, many people think that it still exists and occasionally some one arises here to denounce this unholy alliance.

The simple truth is that The Associated Press has during all these thirty years and more paid exactly what other news associations pay, and that the rates charged by the telegraph companies for the facilities furnished us are greatly in excess of those charged individual newspapers, and still more than those charged stockbrokers having leased wires.

The Associated Press leases wires, many thousands of miles of them, from the Western Union, the Postal, the American Telegraph & Telephone Company, and from several of the independent telephone companies.

The first three have a common basic rate, charging us $24 a mile a year in the daytime and $12 a mile a year at night. For exactly the same wire they charge an individual newspaper $10, and $10, respectively, and a stockbroker gets a still further reduction.

Far from receiving discriminatory favors, The Associated Press feels that it is being distinctly and heavily discriminated against.

In these days when all transactions on a large scale are being subjected to so rigid a scrutiny it is natural that so conspicuous a mark of public attention as is The Associated Press should not find itself immune from critical inspection.

From time to time some voice is raised denouncing The Associated Press in the same breath both as a monopoly and because it is not a monopoly, and insisting that it become a monopoly by admitting to its membership all desiring its service, the theory being that in some way the activities of the association impress it with a public use and subject it to the obligation of a common carrier to serve all comers.

From an ethical standpoint only, then, is there anything improper, unsafe, or unwise in a group of newspapers, large or small, associating themselves together for a thing that each must otherwise do separately, and of reserving to themselves the right to determine to what extent the membership of such a group shall be enlarged?

It does not seem possible to hold fairly that a newspaper in New York may not join with one in Chicago and one in Philadelphia to maintain a common correspondent in Washington, without making it obligatory on these three newspapers to share the fruits of their enterprise with other New York, Chicago, and Philadelphia newspapers.

If in addition they arrange that each shall supply the others with the news of its home city, is it within the bounds of reason that they are required to furnish to competitors the same facilities?

I give this illustration because that is exactly the relation of the newspapers comprising the Associated Press—the scaled only being enlarged. The obligations of a competitor are, however, in no wise dependent on the magnitude of its transactions. The ferry sculled across a stream is just as much impressed with a public use as is the Pennsylvania Railroad. Each is a common carrier. It is the nature of the transaction and not its size that determines its obligations. As respects the question of common carriage, what is right for three to do is right for three hundred or for eight hundred to do.

To compel The Associated Press to assume an entity of its own and to serve all comers, would, in my judgment, bring about a condition tantamount to the gravest dangers to the freedom of the press and in turn to the freedom of the people.

At present about one-third of the daily newspapers of the country are represented by membership in The Associated Press.

There are a number of concerns engaged in the collection and sale of general news to non-members of The Associated Press, and in one way or another they supply their customers with what are declared to be satisfactory services.

If, in wise desiring to become anything approaching a monopoly, The Associated Press has avoided even the appearance of any competition, price rivalry, admitting additional members solely on the ground of a common benefit to the members of a co-operative institution.

If by some occult reasoning The Associated Press could be held as a common carrier, these news-selling organizations would be wiped out and The Associated Press would, in the end, stand for was accomplished, the come a real monopoly, no longer existing for co-operation, no longer existing, it would naturally drift into a concern for pecuniary profit, in private ownership and subject to private control.

No more dangerous situation can well be imagined than the passing of the control of the greatest news-gathering and news-disseminating agency of the world from the hands of co-operating newspapers to the control of some individual interested in manipulating the news—the master and not the servant of the newspapers.

Because this danger would be so grave it will not come, but for another reason, also, a very basic reason.

There can be no monopoly in news. The day that it becomes apparent that a monopoly in collecting and distributing news exists, that day, in some way, by some methods individual newspapers or groups of newspapers will take up the work of establishing a service for themselves, independent of outside control.

The news of the world is open to him who will go for it. Any one willing to expend the energy, the time, and the money to approach it may dip from the well of truth.

The news service of The Associated Press does not consist of its leased wires and its offices. Its soul is in the personal service of human men, of men with eyes to see, with ears to hear, with hands to write, and with brains to understand, of men who are proud when they succeed, humiliated when they fail and resentful when maligned. The telegraph wires are but the blind instruments of this service, though the wire has brought the uttermost parts of the world marvelously close. FIGHT FOR STATE CONTROL
OF GIRLS' INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., April 28.—Although the legislative committee which visited the state charitable and penal institutions made an unfavorable report on the plan to place the entire jurisdiction of the Wisconsin industrial school for girls under the state board of control, an effort will be made to pass a bill over the committee's recommendation.

Everett of Racine is the author of a bill to accomplish this purpose. His bill calls for an appropriation of $20,000 annually for two years for maintenance. At present the state owns the land and buildings and pays for the upkeep of the plant. Members of the legislature have received a letter from Oscar M. Sullivan, general secretary of the Central Association, of Racine, advocating the change of control and declaring that "the smaller amount spent by the school for girls as compared with other cottage institutions for delinquents is a sure indication of a lower grade of care. Wisconsin does not want an economy that sacrifices its girls."

HOLDS THE COW'S TAIL

Fastens to End of Tail and Hooks to Bessie's Leg.

A great many jokes have been made about the cow that persisted in switching her tail in the face of a milker, but the people who do the milking cannot always see the humor of it. For their benefit a man in Maine has designed the cow-tail holder. A short, light chain has two separate strands of wire, with inter twisted portions on one end and a hook on the other end. The wire is made fast to the bushy tuft at the end of the cow's tail and the hook is fastened around one of her legs, near the bottom. If the flies annoy Bessie and she attempts to switch her tail to dislodge them, the hook holds it fast and saves the person who may be milking her a slash in the face. It now remains for somebody to devise a way to prevent a cow from kicking a bucket of milk over.

COUNTRY DWELLING BURNED TO GROUND

House Owned by Carl Brunzell to Northeast of Evansville, Destroyed by Fire Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Evansville, April 28.—Fire this morning destroyed the dwelling owned by Carl Brunzell on the old Caldwell place to the northeast of the city.

The house was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Ole Westby, the son-in-law and daughter of Mr. Brunzell. When discovered the fire had obtained a good start and it was impossible to remove hardly any household goods which are practically a total loss. The fire started from an overheated chimney, and it required great effort to prevent it from spreading in a tobacco shed and also near by. The loss on the house is estimated at $2,000, of which $300 is covered by insurance in the Union Mutual Insurance Company. There was no insurance on the household furnishings.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

"O H, DEAR, why isn't it always Saturday afternoon and Sunday," sighed the Stenographer-Lady, as she stopped at my gate to exchange greetings one blue Monday morning.

She expressed a feeling as old as life itself. Doubtless you felt it today as you took up your routine again (how hard it is, by the way, to pick up one's routine after any break, however short). And yet, to say nothing of the infinite joy of work itself, how much less the pleasures of idleness would be if we did not have the contrast of work.

Few people realize the value of contrast. And yet what a tremendous force it exerts, and what an important part it plays in the lives of all of us.

It takes the contrast of misfortune to make us value good fortune. We drifted into a discussion the other day as to what had been the happiest moment of our lives, and one woman said promptly that the very happiest moment of her life was that in which she found a valuable ring which had been loaned to her and which she had lost. Undoubtedly there must have been moments of greater positive happiness in her life, but it was the contrast afforded by the misery of anxiety which threw the happiness of that particular moment into chief prominence.

In all the gamut of pleasures which the world affords is there any more exquisite sensation than the cessation of pain? Surely there is no one who has suffered who cannot recall how blessedly happy is that golden moment of relief that comes when some terrible pain has ceased to torment.

If every woman were beautiful would there be such a thing as a beautiful woman? Doubtless people live in ideal climates where it is never too hot or too cool, get as much pleasure out of their continual felicity as we do out of an occasional perfect day?

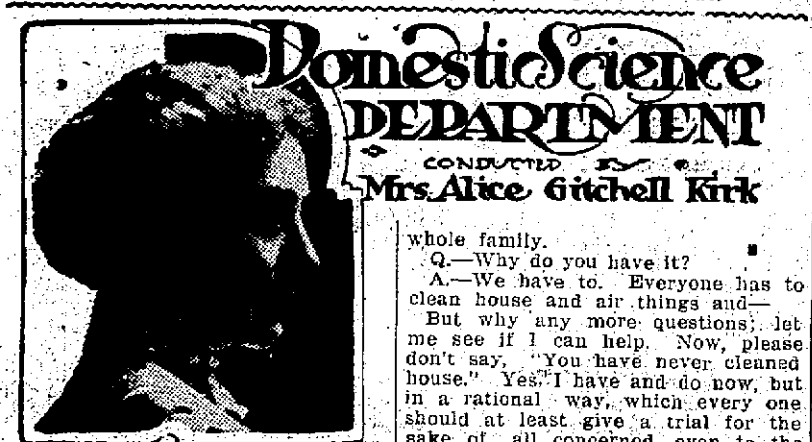

If there were no such thing as death to enhance the value of life, would we appreciate what a wonderful thing life is?

And, to hark back to the little Stenographer-Lady, how could we possibly know the richest pleasures of idleness if we did not have the blessed contrast of work?

The only person I ever knew to dispute this last fact was Dr. Johnson, and I'm sure he only did it for the sake of being contrary. Boswell had said, "We grow weary when idle," and Johnson promptly retorted, "That is, sir, because others being busy, we want company; but if we were idle, there would be no growing weary; we should all entertain one another."

It sounds plausible, but I don't believe it, and I don't think Johnson really believed it.

Of course it is hard to realize it sometimes, but life without contrast would surely be as dull and flat as a picture without light and shade.

Domestic Science DEPARTMENT

CONDUCTED BY Mrs. Alice Mitchell Kirk

House cleaning should correspond with the average business inventory. Really there has been about what this upheaval has been for in homes for the past—no one knows how long—just to find out what we had and where it was.

But what a mess most of us have made of it to say nothing of the long suffering family. Father had breakfast off the stove or kitchen table; the children took something and ran; and as far as I have been able to learn, there has only been one person who seemed to revel in house cleaning, and that is the cartoonist.

It has been bread and meat for him in the funny pictures he has furnished us in magazines and newspapers to laugh over; and sometimes they struck pretty close to the mark in our homes.

I have said: "There is no end of this semi-annual house cleaning." Well, this statement is much like the rules we used to have in grammar—the "exceptions" meant more than the "rules."

Questions Show Why of Cleaning. Let's ask some questions and see if we can get at this problem at a little closer range than we have ever done.

Q.—What is house cleaning for this spring?

A.—To remove the dirt. Q.—Why is there an accumulation of dirt to be removed?

A.—Because we have had no regular system of keeping the house clean all during the winter.

Q.—What other reason for cleaning the house this spring?

A.—To have papering and painting which has to be done, floors done over, rugs cleaned, curtains washed, chairs re-upholstered or covered.

Q.—Is there an easy pleasant way of doing this, without upsetting every room in the house at once?

A.—Not where the house or apartment is small and furniture has to be moved from one room to the other to have papering or painting done.

Q.—Do you enjoy house cleaning?

A.—Who ever heard of such a question. I hate it, and so does the forehand woman, during these cool, wet spring days when she could not get out of doors, has cleaned her attic. This is wise for two reasons; first it is better to begin at the top and work down with cleaning of all kinds. Second, in the modern attics are built-in cupboards and closets for clothing, and this may be looked over for summer use, and heavier ones cleaned, dusted and put out of the way from closets down stairs.

Then there may be just the chair which, with a little freshening of cushions, will replace an old one down stairs; and you were sure before you thought of this a new one would have to be bought. This is time and money saved, too.

Don't Overdo It in Pushing Work. Next, closets and drawers of all kinds, and sizes, down to the kitchen should be cleaned out and put in order and this may be done half a day at a time and vary the work or pleasure in the afternoon. Don't overdo it.

Next, one bedroom at a time and put that in order when cleaned. All papering has to be done, then things will have to be moved out or around more, and it will take longer, but finish, if possible what is commenced and put the main things in order, and best of all, the closets are clean and bureau drawers are neat and clean anyway.

Next down stairs to the living room, dining room, as best suits your home arrangement, but not all at once. When night comes let the housekeeping members of the family find reasonable rest, order and quiet; they have worked equally as hard during the day, and do not relate all your troubles and mishaps, but forget it. They've had their troubles, too.

Curtains from all the rooms down stairs may come down all at once if necessary to send to be cleaned or washed, but that is not disorder. The windows will be clean and the sunshine in helps much toward cleanliness.

When everything is in good order and the housekeeper has had a day or two to rest, then take the kitchen cupboards first; another day painting and cleaning of woodwork and windows and finally cellar or basement. It is never economy for a woman to reach and lift, paper and do work intended for men. The doctors get the money and the woman gets the suffering.

WAYS OF PREPARING FISH.

One must use care in the buying of fish from the market. Look for one with eyes of bright color, flesh firm and the gills of bright color. The sooner a fish is scaled after coming from the water the easier it is done. Take a small sharp knife and scale from the tail to the head. Many find that pouring boiling water over the fish helps the scaling process, but it must be done quickly, not allowing the fish to lie an instant in the water. Hold the knife in a slanting position and the work will be easier.

Split the fish after it is scaled, remove the entrails and wash quickly, not allowing it to lie in the water, as this will cause it to lose its flavor.

Salt fish should be soaked in water and softened by slow cooking. If boiled rapidly the fiber will be toughened.

When a fish is to be boiled, lay it in a thin piece of cheese cloth or muslin, tie up well and lay in a kettle of boiling water. A bay leaf, pepper corns, onion or parsley may be used for seasoning. Simmer gently, allowing ten minutes to the pound for cooking. Lift out carefully, remove the cloth and garnish with parsley and lemon quarters.

Fish à la Creme.—Carefully remove all the bones from cold boiled fish, flaking the meat with a fork. To a bubbling hot tablespoonful of butter add a tablespoonful of flour, then add a pint of milk; season with salt and cayenne pepper. Put a layer of the flaked fish in a well buttered baking dish, add a layer of the white sauce, more fish and sauce, then sprinkle the top with well buttered bread crumbs. Bake until brown. For many, a sprinkling of grated onion adds much to the flavor of the dish.

To Fry Fish.—Put a generous bit of butter and lard in the frying pan, and when smoking hot lay in the fish, browning first on one side and then on the other. Dip the fish in seasoned flour or corn meal before frying.

Homes With and Without May-Poles

THE children are having some May-Day exercises at school today," the clubwoman was saying. "Mamie has been quite excited for weeks over them. The children have been rehearsing and practicing and every night she has had quite a tale to tell me about what they have been doing. There is to be a May-pole, and Morris-dances and quite a revival of the old-time customs."

"I don't approve of such things," said the other woman. "It's nonsense and waste of time. They had better be learning their lessons."

"Do you think so?" exclaimed the clubwoman. "It has set me to thinking, and I have been meditating on the homes in which there are May-poles, and the homes in which there are none."

"But no home has a May-pole," objected the other woman. "Inspirit it does. And that's what I was thinking about—the May-pole spirit. You remember, do you not, in the early days of the colonies, how some colonists of Merry Mount set up a May-pole. With songs and drums and the noise of fiddles, they marched into the forest and cut down a glorious pine eighty feet in height. Can't you see that jolly crowd and what a break this was in their gray life and their grim fight against the wilderness. They wreathed the pole with garlands and ribbons, and mounted on the top the antlers of a buck. And then they proceeded to enjoy May-Day with songs and dancing, the reading of poems and feasting. It was just a splash of color and cheer they were putting into their bleak life. But do you remember what happened?"

"No," said the other woman. "I don't believe I ever heard of it."

"The Pilgrims who disapproved of all such merry-making, came and chopped their May-pole down."

"What a shame!"

The clubwoman laughed. "You are going back in your own opinion. A few minutes ago you said you didn't approve of May-poles."

"It was the other woman's turn to laugh. "I see what you mean."

"And don't you agree with me that some homes have May-poles and some haven't?"

"Yes," admitted the other woman. "I don't think celebration and festivities should be carried to excess, but I do think that the spirit of brightness and cheer should reign in every home. And every little thing that encourages it is a good thing. A few May-flowers on the table, some especially spring dainties on the menu, and a little chatter about May and all the bright sunny days ahead, will make the atmosphere of the house brighter and cheerier. Instead of frowning upon and checking high spirits and laughter and joy, I say develop them all possible."

"I guess you are right," admitted the other woman. "I think I'll see to it that the May-pole spirit reigns in our home and crops out whenever there is a chance for it to show its merry face."

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am seventeen and like a boy of twenty-one. I am a college boy and I've heard that he is corresponding with a certain girl whom I know to be a flirt. She has "good things" (as she expresses it) with the boys and I don't like for this boy to have anything to do with her on that account.

He denies this, says he hasn't written her, but she has written him twice. He once liked her, but they fussed, and now she is anxious to get him again.

Which shall I believe? I am afraid he likes her, but he just says all the time he doesn't.

(2) I have grown brothers and they call me "Dimples" and don't think it anything wrong for their boy-friends to call me the same, but I don't like it and tell my brothers so. What do you think about it?

(3) I have light curly hair, gray eyes and light complexion. What color of evening dress should I have this summer? Would a tan traveling suit be come me?

(4) I am five feet two inches and weigh 110 pounds. Am I too heavy? "DIMPLES."

(1) It wouldn't be wise for you to say anything more about this girl to the young man. You only attract his attention to her. He probably cares nothing for her and by this time has seen a lot of other pretty and charming girls whom he likes just as well as the ones he left at home.

(2) There's no harm in it, if they are all old friends.

(3) I should think the new blues would look very well on you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl of thirty-two and have a lover of nineteen, who seems to think very much of me and asked me to become his wife. Kindly advise me if such a marriage would be so very improper. I have had other proposals from friends, nearer my age but none have touched my heart like my last lover.

(2) What is the best massage cream to use for the complexion? Will it remove blackheads and wrinkles?

(3) The boy will not thank you for accepting him when you are ten years older. He isn't old enough to know his own mind. Like most boys of his age, he thinks he is in love with a woman almost old enough to be his mother. He'll get over it. Meanwhile, it is your business to be a good influence in his life and not to take advantage of his childhood. Many somebody nearer your age—if he is five years younger it will not make so much difference, but you will be more apt to be congenial to each other in the years to come.

(4) Most of the massage creams on the market are good, except the very cheap ones. It is the massage itself that removes wrinkles and tones up the skin. The cream will soften the flesh so that blackheads may be washed out in time with plenty of good soap and water.

With her present husband, as he has no affection for her, I have tried to keep away from her, as I know it is wrong, but she persists in talking with me and being with me at every possible chance.

She has offered to leave her husband and her unhappy life and marry me, and as we love each other dearly I know we could live happily. So what am I to do?

THE woman is selfish, as she would not persuade you and disturb your peace of mind. She would not be any happier with you than she is with her husband now, and if you marry her you would never feel sure but that she would be telling some other man about how unhappy she is with you. Cut loose from her, young man, and save your life for a woman who doesn't writhle about her unhappy lot. Love honorably and you will surely find happiness.

SABBATH SAFEGUARD FOR BODY AND SOUL

DESECRATION IS DESTRUCTIVE OF PHYSICAL AND MENTAL WELL BEING OF MAN.

INSTITUTION IS DIVINE

The Rev. E. O. Hoffmeister Delivers Thoughtful Sermon on Vital
Topic—Creator Before Creation.

"Let us not forget our Creator for his creation at this time of the year when nature in its balmy moods tempts us to come out from beneath our roofs to the open sky, the grove and the lake," said the Rev. Hoffmeister, pastor of St. Peter's English Lutheran church, in his sermon yesterday morning on the subject of the Christian Sabbath.

"We owe it to our God, and to ourselves to observe the Sabbath and refrain from its desecration. The Sabbath is a divine institution, established primarily that man might find the time and leisure for communion with his maker, and unless man uses the day for this purpose he not only violates that third commandment, but does himself serious wrong. His physical, mental, and moral natures, require that the Sabbath day be hallowed, no less than does his spiritual being. I am not a Puritan in my ideals of Sabbath keeping, but I would rather return to its rigid and extreme requirements than see it become a holiday in which each person saw fit to do as he pleased, neglecting to worship God, nor heeding his injunctions."

The Rev. Hoffmeister took as his text the twenty-seventh and twenty-eighth verses of the second chapter of the Gospel according to Mark:

"And he said unto him, the Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath."

"Therefore the Son of man is Lord also of the Sabbath." "These words," continued the speaker, "were spoken by Jesus Christ when the Pharisees rebuked him and his disciples in that they walked through the fields on the Sabbath day, and as they went plucked the ears of corn."

"Jesus was ready with a reply. His first appeal was to precedent, the most effective upon the minds of the law-venerating Pharisees."

"And he said unto them, have ye never read what David did, when he had need, and was an, hungered, he and they that were with him?"

"How he went into the house of God in the days of Abiathar the high priest and did eat the shew-bread, which it is not lawful to eat but for the priests, and gave also to them which were with him?"

"The second argument advanced by our Lord were the words of out text: 'The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath.'"

"He means to teach us that we should not lose sight of the end in giving attention to the means, for the Sabbath is not an end in itself, but a means of conferring benefits upon man. It is the gift of God to man."

"Foremost in the reasons for Sabbath observance, in point of time, are the historical reasons. Man was created on the sixth day; he was the climax of creation, pure and undefiled, and if he needed the Sabbath then he certainly needs it now. Man was born and designed to have communion with God, and cannot thrive without it."

"For forty years the children of Israel received manna in the wilderness. They received twice as much on the sixth day as on others, but none on the seventh, and in this way they were firmly impressed with the habit of Sabbath keeping. Then when Moses descended from Mount Sinai with the tables of stone on which were inscribed the ten commandments God's commandment of Sabbath observance was given to all men for all time."

"The third commandment is the only one which God explains. He emphasizes the point of abstinence from labor on the Sabbath day. The whole aim of the Jewish religion was to refrain from breaking the commandments and so anxious were they to cover the slightest infractions that they divided the ten commandments into 613 different laws. They lost sight of the end in attending to the means. When Christ came he put an entirely different aspect upon religion, and the law ceased to be an end in itself. The Christian ideal of the Sabbath is to hold communion with the Father."

The Rev. Hoffmeister gave a brief summary of the manner in which the first day of the week became the Christian Sabbath, supplanting the Jewish Sabbath, which was also kept for a time by the early Jewish Christians, but never by the Gentiles. It was first decreed a legal holiday by the Emperor Constantine, all the courts being ordered closed on that day. The Christians attempted to follow the spirit of the law instead of its letter in keeping the Sabbath.

"Many are disposed," said the speaker, "to misinterpret the words of Jesus concerning the observance of the Sabbath. It is true indeed, that he said the Sabbath was made for man, but it was made to supply his needs and it is for man to find out what he does need. Certainly it is not a day for gross self-indulgence, pleasure that leaves one more weary at the end of the Sabbath than at its beginning."

"The Lord's day is a day for every man. It is first of all a day for the children. Many scarcely see their father from one week's end to the other. He owes them his company and society for at least one day in the week. It is a day when there should be a reunion in the family circle. The spirit of the Sabbath must be appreciated in the home before it can be understood in its larger aspects. It is a day for students, to consider that most important problem, the destiny of the human soul; the poor man's day, to impress upon his children that God gives him strength to earn their daily bread; and no less the rich man's day, in which he should show his family that there are other interests in life than stocks and bonds, treasures that rust and moth will not corrupt. It is a day of cheer for mourners, and all saints' day."

In closing his sermon the Rev. Hoffmeister made plain to his hearers the necessity of proper Sabbath observance to bodily, mental and spiritual welfare, all of which would suffer without it.

MOVING PICTURE SHOWS.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

The moving picture theatre is a place of entertainment where people pay a nickel to see love made and murder committed. They are also able to witness the murder of the English king, and the popular song by a petrified vocalist, who stands in the spotlight and forces vowels and consonants through an orifice called the throat. As a rule no extra charge is made for this privilege, and if there were there would be a grand rush for the box office.

The acting in moving picture shows is always perpetrated by deaf and dumb people, who have a very emphatic form of lip expansion and look as if they were about to say something. Some of the acting is so plain that the audience can tell at once when they are witnessing a love scene. As fully nine-tenths of the acting in a moving picture shows consists either in making love in a feverish and impatient manner or in reading an anonymous letter, it is easily understood by all.

The most popular reels shown in moving picture theatres are those which depict the American Indian in the act of being slaughtered by the regular army. The picture show which fails to kill off several robust Indians at every performance is a losing proposition. Then there is the sparkling comedy reel which causes a fat woman to leap a barbed wire fence, following in rapid succession by a company of hard-rubber acrobats, several of whom are in petticoats.

When moving pictures were first introduced they met with considerable opposition from the clergy, but now a great many churches use moving pictures of their own, thereby increasing the evening collection and keeping their young people out of the nickelodeon. If more churches would follow this plan their pews would be filled with something besides a chilly vacuum.

The moving picture show is a great deal better than it was on the start, and it will improve just as fast as the public taste will allow it to. It could be improved in the way of ventilation at once, however, without dragging out a protest from anybody.

Large Expenditure for Improvements
At Janesville Institution Favored
By Legislative Visiting Committee.

The report of the legislative visiting committee on the state school for the blind, located in this city, carries with it a recommendation for some $38,000 or $40,000 for additional buildings. A new dining room for which $16,000 has already been appropriated with $8,000 more needed, and a cottage for children costing $30,000, comprise the improvements of most importance which are recommended.

The committee has praise for the present teaching force and for the work done by the pupils. The membership of the committee is: H. K. Huber, chairman; G. E. Hoyt, S. C. Goff, A. R. Potts, Martin Gorecki, E. J. Knetz. Their report in full on the Janesville school is given below:

"Your committee visited the School for the Blind on January 30, 1913, and found the main buildings in need of a great many repairs. The buildings were found as clean and sanitary as the conditions would permit. The ventilation is poor, and in many instances the plumbing in the lavatories and the toilet rooms needed repairs. The buildings were found in good condition and well kept. The institution has two large spiral fire escapes, which are reported to operate satisfactorily. The pupils are well trained in their use, but otherwise the fire protection is inadequate. The power plant was found in fairly good condition. The institution has eighteen cows, which furnish plenty of milk for the inmates, and they have sixty-six acres of land, about eighteen of which are under cultivation."

"The employe and teaching force were found adequate. The pupils are well cared for and the teaching is good. Most of the heating in the basement, and this was found to be quite dark and damp. This basement has very poor ventilation. The dining and dish-washing room is very inadequate. Most of the work done here is by hired help."

"The institution has an especially fine orchestra and the chorus singing is excellent, considering the conditions under which the pupils are taught. The pupils have good instruction and do good work along mechanical lines, especially in relation to repairing and tuning pianos and raffle work. The other pupils were found to be expert at point reading and in the use of the typewriter."

"The committee's attention was called by a number of the older boys in the institution to the fact that they were criticised for smoking, and that the boys objected to this because the instructor making the criticism smoked cigarettes himself; that they detected this from the instructor's breath. The boys took exception to this, claiming the instructor ought to practice what he preached. We call the attention of the Board of Control to this matter."

Needs of the Institution.
"1. New dining room. An appropriation of $16,000 for this was made two years ago and not used, being an inadequate amount for the purpose, and with the present appropriation of $8,000 asked for will construct the building.
"2. Some better provision for fire protection.
"3. New equipment in the domestic science kitchen, new stove and other accessories.
"4. Better ice box arrangement and provide for better toilet rooms.
"5. Play ground equipment.
"6. Cottage for children, $30,000."

THE PURCHASE PRICE; OR, THE CAUSE OF COMPROMISE

By EMERSON HOUGH

Copyright, 1910, by Emerson Hough

They turned and looked up, arrested by the unmistakable quality in the tones. They saw her leaning against the baluster of the stair, one arm bound tightly to her side, the other resting a revolver barrel along the baluster and glancing down at it with a fearless eye. She took a step or two lower down the stair, sliding the weapon with her. "What are you doing there?" she demanded.

A half-bumorous twist came to the mouth of Carlisle. He answered quietly, as he raised a hand for silence.

"Just about what you might expect us to do. We're trying to take care of ourselves. But how about yourself? I thought you were with us, madam. I had heard that you—"

"Come," she answered, lowering the weapon and stepping swiftly down the stairs. "Come outside, where we can talk."

The three now passed out the open front door to the wide gallery, which lay in the dim twilight, unattended.

"How came you here?" she demanded. "You left me. I don't know anything about what's going on. I'm all at sea."

"So are we all, madam. But I'll tell you all I know. I left you for several reasons. I knew my main errand with you was done. My post is out beyond, up the Missouri. I was on my way there when I got orders to take you with me, as you know. I concluded to drop off and send a telegraphic report to Washington and to ask consent to go on out to my post. I saw your note to Dunwoody. You had then chosen a new jailer. I thought since he was better known in this country than myself your reputation would be safer in his hands than mine. But as soon as I left I began to think it over, and I resolved to follow after you not as a jailer, but as a friend. I met a little party of northern men going out to the Kansas country, and I knew Lieutenant Kammerer here at St. Louis. We all thought alike. That girl yonder pleaded so hard that we took her on with us at Cairo. She was bound to get away. When we tied up for the night above St. Genevieve we were attacked by these Missourians here. I had intended to leave the boat, for now I knew where you were. Lily told me you were taken—handled rudely—like a slave—that you—Well, then, I knew it was Dunwoody."

"Are you of the revolutionists, madam?" demanded the big German suddenly.

"Yes," she wheeled upon him. "I am from Europe. I am for liberty."

"Come, then," said Kammerer, quietly reaching out and taking away the revolver from her hand. "We're friends. How came you to be in this country here?"

She smiled at him bitterly. "Because of my zeal. There were powers who wanted me out of Washington. Ask Captain Carlisle as to that. But this man I met later on the boat, as you know. He brought me here—as you have heard."

"It is outrage!" broke in Kammerer. "It is crime!"

"We'll call him to account," interrupted Carlisle. "Why did you stop us? We'd have killed him the next minute. I'll kill him yet."

"I was afraid you would kill him," she said simply.

"Well, why not? What has he done to us—our men—to you?"

"I could not see it done."

"You'll see worse done. We'll do it yet. You must not stand in our way. His hand closed over his own revolver butt, and he made a half motion forward."

"No," she said, and stepped before him.

Carlisle would have put her aside. "What do you mean? They'll be out here in a minute; we'll have to fight if they catch us here. Do you want to see us killed? Quick! Out of the way!"

His voice, raucous in anger, rasped at her ears, low as it was pitched.

"No," she still replied. "Let me do the thinking. Keep quiet! I'll get you out. There's been blood enough shed now."

"You are magnificent, madam," said Carlisle, "but you are visionary. Get out of our way. I claim him. Leave him to me."

"No, I claim him myself. Leave him to me!"

"What next?" exclaimed the young northerner bitterly. "Are we all mad? Haven't you had trouble enough already with this man? You don't make yourself clear. What do you want of him?"

"I'm not entirely clear about it myself. I can't get away from here, but I'm safe here now. But you don't belong here. Very well, I'm obliged to stay for a time. So I'm just going to take the position of commander. I'm just going to parole you two. You're free to go if you like."

"The lady has right," said Kammerer. "What she said is wise, if it can be done."

"But, madam, what will become of you?" said Carlisle at last. Her answer was instant. She turned back to the door.

"Judge Clayton?" she called out, loud and clear. "Mr. Yates! All of you, come here!"

The inner doors opened and they ran out at her call. Some of them had been asleep, leaning back in their chairs against the wall. The confusion of their approach now aroused all the house. There appeared also the tall form of Dunwoody himself, leaning on a rifle barrel for a crutch. All these paused in the hall or on the gallery close to the great door.

"There's been plotting here!" he cried. "What's up? Get your arms, men! Cover them, quick!"

"Wait!" said Carlisle quietly. "We're armed and we've got you covered. His weapon said that of Kammerer, whose gray in the half light. Dunwoody threw himself against the doorpost with a growl of anger."

"You've been plotting against us!" he said to Josephine grimly. "Well!"

"You are unjust, as usual, sir," said Carlisle hotly. "On the contrary, she just kept us from killing you."

"What do you mean?" demanded Dunwoody dully.

"I've assumed command here," interrupted Josephine calmly. "I've paroled these gentlemen. I'm going to set them free. Judge Clayton and Mr. Jones and you others, too, must go on home. You will have to surrender to the courts. These men are going to leave the state. All of you must disperse—at once."

"And you yourself?" began Dunwoody grimly; "what do you plan?"

"I remain. I am a hostage. It will now be known where I am. You will be responsible for me now. I fancy that will suit Washington as well as to detain Captain Carlisle as my jailer any longer. If I thought I needed him, I would not let him go. We are all of us going to be under parole, don't you see?"

"Is it your wish that we should give parole in these circumstances, Dunwoody?" Judge Clayton himself smiled, rather sardonically.

"I don't see why not, after all," said Dunwoody, at length, slowly. "I don't see why that isn't about as wise as anything we can do. The law will do the rest of this work and we must all be ready for it, as she says. Only one thing, gentlemen, before we part. As to this young lady here, I'll kill the first man, friend or foe, who raises a breath against her."

An hour later clattering hoofs once more resounded along the Tallwoods road.

CHAPTER XI.

The Art of Dr. Jamieson.

LEANING against the pillar of the gallery, Dunwoody watched them all—old friends, late foes—depart. Josephine St. Auban stood not far away. He turned to her, and her gaze fell upon his face, now haggard and gaunt.

"You are ill," she said to him impulsively. "You're badly hurt."

"Aren't you glad to see me suffer?" he asked grimly.

"I am not glad to see any one suffer."

"Well, never mind about me. But now, you, yourself, didn't I tell you to go to your room and rest?"

She was pale, the corners of her mouth were drawn, her eyes were duller. Neither had she slept. She also suffered even now. Yet her courage matched his own. She smiled.

"It makes me crawl all the way through to see a woman hurt that way. Why did you try to climb out of that window? You weren't walking in your sleep."

"I was trying to get away from you. I thought you were coming. I thought I heard you—at the door." She looked him full in the face, searching it for sign of guilt, of confusion. "Was it not enough?" she added.

The frown on his face only deepened. "That was not true," said he. "I never came to your door. It was Sally you heard. I'll confess—I sent her to get away those—those clothes you saw. I didn't want you to see them."

"I believe you," she said low, as if she spoke to herself. "Yes, I understand now. I was mistaken."

"How do you know? Why forgive me? I don't want you to forgive me. I am degraded forever."

"Tell me," she flashed out upon him suddenly, "what did you think then of me there on the boat? How did you dare?"

"I don't think I had any conclusion. I only wanted you. I just couldn't think of your going away, that was all. I'd never seen a woman like you. I'd never hope to see another your equal in all my life. And you sent for me, told me to come; said you needed help. I didn't know what you were. But I didn't care what you were either. I don't care now. I wanted you. I'll never in all my life cease to want you."

"But what is the right thing to do now?" he resumed, shortly. "Parole? Hostage? I don't need to tell you I'm the prisoner now. My future, my character, are absolutely in your hands. The fact that I have insulted a woman can be proved. It is with you what revenge you will take. As a lawyer, I point out to you that the courts are open. You easily can obtain redress there against Warrville Dunwoody. And your relatives or friends will of course hold me accountable."

"Then you fear me?"

"No. What comes, comes. I am afraid of no one in the world but my own self. I fear only the dread of facing life—of looking about me here, in my own home, and not seeing, not hearing you. Tell me, when will your lawyers call on me?"

"Never at all," she answered at last. "What do you mean?" he demanded.

"To let me off so easily? Oh, no."

"Never fear. You shall pay me ransom, and heavily, out of your own character. I shall exact it a hundred-fold—in shame, in regret—of you. You love my body. You do not love my mind. I love them both. Yes, I am a student of the law. Humanity! Is it not larger than we? Is this narrow, selfish life of yours all you can see of life, of the higher law?"

"Yes," said Dunwoody, grinning painfully. "I reckon maybe it was one of those 'higher law' abolitionists that shot me!"

"Shot? What do you mean?" Even as she spoke she now for the first time caught sight of the dark rimmed rent in his trousers leg, noted the uneasy fashion in which he held his weight erect.

"No one told me you were hurt; I thought you only tired, or perhaps bruised, by some accident, when you fell in there."

"No; shot," he replied. "Shot right in here, through the edge of the bone. When I tripped and fell, there in the hall, I broke the bone short off. It was only nicked at first."

"And you have been standing here, talking to me, with that?" She stepped to him swiftly and placed a hand under his arm. "You must go in. Come. Can you walk?"

Through his nerves, racked as they were, there swept a flood of joy, more sweet than that of any drug. She put her free arm under his, forgetful of everything in her woman's wish to ally suffering, to brood, to protect, to increase life. They passed through the door toward the foot of the stairs. Here she turned to him.

"The pain is very great?" she inquired.

"The pain at thinking of your going away is very great," he answered. One hand on the newel post, he bent down, his head on his arm for an instant. "Oh, you're making me pay!" he groaned. But the next moment he turned on her defiantly. "I'll not learn if this was the only way for me to meet you then I'll not regret a single thing I've done. I'll not pay! It all comes back to me, just what I said before. What couldn't we do, together? I need you. I need you!"

"You must go to your room. You've been standing for an hour."

"But I've been with you. I can't hope for another hour like this! You'll be leaving me. But I'll live the hour over again—in hell with you!"

"I told you when we all gave parole that I would exact my price of you in regret, in remorse."

"You shall not have it in regret. I'll not regret. But I'm paying! See, I'm telling you you may go, that you must go—away from me."

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 27, 1912. "I had been troubled for the past three years with pimples which completely covered my face and neck. ## DINNER STORIES

"Excuse me, sir," said the well-dressed stranger, as he stepped inside the door. "Is this Mr. Sam's office?"

"No, replied the man at the desk, rather angrily: 'his office is upstairs, on the floor above.'"

"Much obliged," muttered the stranger, as he proceeded to absent himself.

But he was artful, was that stranger, for he left the door wide open.

Then it was that the gentleman at the desk became angrier still.

"Hi!" he called. "Come back and close my door! Hi, d-o-o-r!"

The artful one returned. From a bag he produced a mechanical appliance. Upon his face there sat a pleasant smile.

"Allow me, sir, to show you my patent double-action door spring. Closes the door without a bang. Absolutely the very latest and best! Warranted for 99 years."

The dodge worked—when the artful man had talked a little longer.

Champ Clark has the happy knack of being able to parry inconvenient interruptions with some smart retort that immediately squashes the opposition. He was speaking at a rather noisy meeting not long ago, and after a short time a big chunk of wood was thrown at him. Fortunately, the aim was bad, and it fell harmlessly on the platform.

Mr. Clark picked it up and showed it to the audience.

"Good heavens!" he exclaimed in tones of mock anxiety, "one of our opponents has lost his head!"

WOMEN GAMBLE FOR HIGH STAKES.

Many women are gamblers for very high stakes. They stake their health and good looks upon everything working out all right when attacked by those ailments which their sex alone are called upon to suffer.

The only excuse can be ignorance of the dangerous consequences or an aversion to undergo medical examination. This may often be avoided by recourse to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a perfectly safe and harmless remedy compounded from roots and herbs, which for nearly forty years has been curing American women from the worst forms of female ills.

Don't Let Real Money Rot Away in the Attic.

How many dollars are piled away in the shape of used and discarded furniture in attics of this city and county? Suffice to say that it would run into many, many thousands of dollars.

Years ago perhaps there was a reason for this. Opportunities for selling this kind of goods were few and buyers hard to find. About the only people who could be reached were the immediate neighbors.

Not so today.

A Classified Advertisement in tonight's Gazette would go into over 6000 homes. Just a few lines telling what you have, and the price, would reach practically every home in the county. Every prospective buyer for your goods in a radius of twenty-five miles would know of your offer within a single day.

DON'T CARRY THIS KIND OF DOLLARS TO THE ATTIC. IT HAS A MARKET VALUE AND QUICK SALE.
